DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 22 October 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which the subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wieland, 5,243,764 in view of Durr, 6,363,618. '764 discloses the claimed invention, including an engine powered portable tool comprising a working tool placed on a working tool carrier 32 clamped to a tool casing comprising at least a crankcase 27 characterized in that the working tool carrier is clamped to a protruding part 47 of the crankcase 50; the protruding part 47 is provided with a surface that the work tool carrier is clamped to; the working tool carrier is clamped to the tool casing by one or more bolts 48 secured in the protruding part by related nuts;. '764 does not disclose the crankcase made of a plastic material or material with low density, the component, made of a higher E-module than the material in the rest of the crankcase, embedded in the crankcase wall. '618, in a similar device, figures 1-3, and column 2, lines 29 through column 4, lines 44, teaches providing a component 7 in a crankcase wall, the component made of a metal composition, inherently having a higher E-module than the material in the rest of the crankcase, made of a low density material, and the component is shaped and placed so that a section 34 of the component is not covered by the material that the rest of the crankcase is made of so that the section is a part of the surface that the working tool carrier aligns; and the component is placed in such a way in the crankcase that at least one of the screws 11 that keep the different parts of the crankcase together also extend through the component. Because both references teach a housing for a portable tool, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to substitute the crankcase of low density material with a metal composition insert to achieve the predictable result of providing a portable tool having a crankcase of lighter weight, higher strength, and less overall height.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Applicant's amendment has overcome the previous rejection under 35 USC 102.
